

New Cinema and Theatre Brecon Road :: Ystradgynlais

Lessees - - - Messrs. Edwards & Page

The Lessees beg to thank their numerous patrons for past support, and announce the

Grand Opening

OF THE

New Cinema & Theatre in Brecon Road

Will take place on

Monday, Jan. 5th, 1914

THE building is the finest in the district, and compares favourably with any in South Wales.

The lessees have spared no expense in furnishing and decorating the interior of the theatre, so that the comfort of patrons is assured.

The stage fittings are modern, and the scenery has been specially painted by Cattermole Cathrey, Esq., who has executed work for some of the best theatres in the kingdom.

A new bioscope machine has been installed, thus ensuring that the best possible pictures will be screened in a definite, rock-steady, and absolutely flickerless manner.

THE NEW CINEMA

As will be noticed in our advertising columns, Messrs. Edwards and Page will open the new cinema in Brecon road on Monday next. The residents of Ystradgynlais have become accustomed to high class fare in the variety entertainment business during the last two and a half years, but never before has such an array of talent been at their service during any one week as will be the case during next week. The new cinema is capable of seating about 600 people in comfort, and the hall is to be heated on up-to-date lines, and properly ventilated. The seating arrangements are such that every person present will have an uninterrupted view of the stage, there being no pillars and the floor is sloped in such a manner as to secure the best possible view from any part of the building. The interior has been magnificently decorated, and the people of the district have every reason to be proud of such an excellent house of entertainment. Messrs. Edwards and Page may be relied upon to "serve up" value for money, both in pictures and variety turns, and their efforts to please are deserving of the patronage of all who are anxious that only the best and most educative entertainments should be the order. The bioscope which has been installed is the most perfect to be obtained, and it is certain that no clearer pictures will be screened at any cinema.
